Re: Federal Insurance Co., et al. v. al Qaida, et al.
Our File No.: 117430

Dear Steven:

I write in response to your May 11, 2005 letter, in which you advise that certain of your clients: (1) will no longer be contesting personal jurisdiction in these proceedings; (2) do not intend to respond to plaintiffs' jurisdictional discovery requests, on the grounds that they view those requests to be moot as a result of the abandonment of their personal jurisdiction defenses; and (3) would like to discuss a proposed briefing schedule for "renewed" motions to dismiss those clients intend to file.

While we are happy that your clients now recognize that the personal jurisdiction defenses they raised in their motions to dismiss are meritless, we do not believe that the Court's January 18, 2005 decision can plausibly be read to permit your clients to file renewed motions to dismiss absent completion of all jurisdictional discovery contemplated by that decision. As you no doubt are aware, in denying your clients' motion to dismiss under 12(b)(6), the Court held as follows:

The Court's analysis of the SAAR Network's arguments in favor of 12(b)(6) dismissal depends on a predicate finding of which entities are subject to this Court's personal jurisdiction and which entity – and under what circumstances – transfer monies to terror fronts. Accordingly, the SAAR Network's Motion to Dismiss is denied without prejudice. It may be renewed upon completion of personal jurisdiction discovery.

The plain language of the Court's decision makes clear that your clients have no right to file renewed Motions to Dismiss under 12(b)(6) absent the completion of jurisdictional discovery. As your clients have indicated that they are withdrawing their personal jurisdiction defenses and do not intend to engage in jurisdictional discovery, they simply have no right to file renewed motions to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), and the claims against your clients must necessarily now proceed to merits discovery.

In view of the foregoing, I write to advise you that you may treat the jurisdictional discovery previously served upon your clients as merits discovery. Because that discovery was served many months ago, we would ask that you provide responses within thirty (30) days of the date of this letter. To the extent that you anticipate the production of voluminous documentation in response to plaintiffs' discovery requests, our clients may be willing to consent to production of responsive materials on a rolling basis, within a reasonable time frame. However, in the event that we do not receive responses to our outstanding discovery requests within thirty (30) days, and have not reached an alternative agreement regarding the production of responsive materials, we will proceed to file a motion to compel.

In the event that you have any questions, do not hesitate to contact me.

Very truly yours,

COZEN O'CONNOR
